

Our speaker today is a national presenter of keynote speeches, endnote addresses and everything in between!

This lady is skilled at poking fun at herself while reinforcing her belief that a funny bone is as important to your overall well-being as your cholesterol level.

You name it, she's done it . . . from jerking sodas in South Dakota . . . to injecting patients in Iowa . . . to clowning at Ground Zero in New York City.

She joined a Fun Medicine Delegation to travel to China with the famous Dr. Patch Adams and after returning home established a Caring Clown Troupe in her local hospital where she continues to manage and teach classes.

She's trained dogs to win top awards in the show ring and bring comfort as pet therapy canines. She's been a nurse, a college instructor, a supervisor of teen-age hospital volunteers and a puppy mill inspector.

Her brand-spanking-new book, "Laugh Your Lips Off!", is chock full of Jenny's favorite jokes, side-splitting anecdotes and true-life experiences.

And her autobiography, "You Laugh, I'll Drive," will take you on a wild, uplifting ride into how to laugh in spite of life's speed bumps, detours and head-on collisions!

This delightful woman lives and breathes her belief that humor is indeed the best medicine!

Help me welcome our speaker . . . Jenny Herrick
